Shoreline sewerage grant, loan approved

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County Supervisors might learn as soon as Monday that a federal grant and loan have been approved to extend sewerage lines into more areas of Shoreline Park.

The Echo has learned that the U.S. Agriculture Department's Rural Development Administration has informed officials of Hancock County's Wastewater District 1 that funds will be approved for the project, which will link approximately 380 more Shoreline customers to sewerage hookups.

The RDA has agreed to loan Hancock County $559,600 over a 35-year period at an interest rate of 4.5 percent, and give the county an outright grant of $1,555,600. The loan would be repaid with revenues from customers, who will be pay a monthly charge of $35 for sewerage.

In return for the federal funds, Wastewater District officials and supervisors must ensure the RDA that they will require all residents to hook up to the sewerage system, and they

Tree planted

Students in Living Skills and Agricultural Science classes at Hancock High School planted a magnolia this week to honor fellow classmate Henry Spurlock III, who died in October and would have been 15 on Monday. Teacher Gay Davis, who taught the paralyzed and wheelchair-bound boy for several years, organized the tree planting. Spurlock's mother, Sandra Wheat and his stepfather, Harry Wheat, and grandmother, Mrs. Marilyn Stoltz, were on hand, along with fellow classmates and other family members. 'Zoning Zone' warns of trailers

BY ED LEPOMA

(Second in a series)

Neil Smith, Hancock County's interim zoning enforcement officer and building inspector, has come up with innovative and educating fact sheets to educate the general public about the new comprehensive zoning ordinance.

As a public service, Smith has given the Echo permission to reprint "The Zoning Zone" in its entirety or to make editorial changes when deemed necessary.

In his first issue, Smith warns mobile-home buyers to "Be Aware."

He reminds citizens, before you buy, you should first have a permit to place a mobile home on your lot.

"It may sound complicated and be a bit of a hassle, but it's the law," Smith writes. "You cannot change or modify the use of your lot without a permit."

Hancock High students to receive computers

BY RICHARD MEEK

Hancock High School students will begin next fall with new books, notebooks, and a laptop computer in every bookbag.

The Hancock County School District is investing $2.6 million to purchase laptops for all ninth through 12th graders.

Hancock will be the first school in Mississippi with the computers, and one of only 12 schools nationwide to sign on with Net Schools, a fledgling California company that has developed the computer and accompanying educational software.

"I'm real excited about this project," School Board President Cheryl Bennett said.

Young aviators fly the blue skies

BY BILL ROBBINS

Nearly 50 fledgling aviation enthusiasts soared into the sky over nearby Stennis International Airport last Saturday, given their first introduction to the excitement of flight, in airplanes piloted by flyers from a local chapter of the Experimental Aircraft Association (EAA), a national organization.

Returning to earth wearing broad smiles that replaced initial grins of uncertainty, the youngsters, ranging in age from 8-18, were then handed certificates designating them as Young Eagles of the EAA.

Their certificates, bearing the names of honorary co-chairmen of the Young Eagles program: actor Cliff Robertson and Chuck Yeager, the famed

Stay in touch with teens, says psychologist

At their stage of development, teens are seeking independence and autonomy, so it's normal for them to "clam up" around parents, says Susannah Ferris Dakin, acting assistant director of counseling at the University of Mississippi's Beasie S. Speed Wellness Center.

"One of the ways teens seek autonomy is by trying to work out their own problems for themselves," says Dakin. "Parents may grow concerned about this, especially if they are used to their child talking to them a lot. It's important, then, to let your teen know that while your respect her privacy, the communication 'door' is still open and that you are available."

The Ole Miss psychologist offers the following tips for staying in touch with teens:

• Hone your listening skills.

When you're listening, reflect back to what your teen is saying so that he knows you have heard him," says Dakin. Acknowledge his feelings even when he doesn't state them. Use phrases like, "You sound frustrated," or "You seem to be having some doubts about going to that party."

• Respect teen's feelings and hold off giving advice.

Show respect for your teen's struggle or whatever situation she's experiencing, Dakin advises. Don't ask too many questions, and don't offer too many answers. Encourage her to explore and make her own choices.

Don't take away hope. "It is helpful to say things like, 'You must be so hurt, disappointed and heartbroken,'" she says. "Acknowledging her feelings is vital. You can help her put the situation into perspective after she has had sufficient time to feel her feelings. In time, the lessons from your teen's experience will emerge."

• Be resourceful.

The car is a good place to talk, since we spend so much time in it, taking our children places," says Dakin. She also suggests the following: try to have the family sit together for a meal at least once a day; have a family discussion after an interesting TV program; schedule a weekly family meeting; continue the ritual of hugging and kissing your teen good night and use this time to sit down on the bed and talk; and schedule picnics or walks, something outside the normal routine.

• Sometimes a teen's lack of communication is cause for concern.

"You can tell if a teen's lack of communication is a negative signal if it's accompanied by other signs of deeper problems," says Dakin.

Those signs include loss of appetite, lack of interest in previously meaningful activities, fall in grades, dramatic change in clothing, change in sleep habits, withdrawal and isolation from friends, dramatic change in friends, and lack of self-care and hygiene.

Solid Waste Authority created

BY ED LEPOMA

The two cities and supervisors have signed an agreement that would create the Hancock County Regional Solid Waste Management Authority.

Supervisors, represented by Lisa Cowand and Rocky Pullman, okayed creation of the new governing board after attorney Lucien Gex informed them that any changes from what had been advertised in the Echo would require further publication.

As envisioned, the present three member Solid Waste District would be expanded to a six-member Regional Authority, with members serving staggering terms.

Board of Supervisors President Phillip Moran first objected to the makeup of the board, because it required him, as President, to serve on the new Authority, along with the mayors of Bay St. Louis and Waveland. And, Cowand later said she hoped to amend the enabling legislation to require that only "elected officials" serve on the new Authority.

But, at Wednesday's meeting of the Solid Waste District, Gex convinced all parties concerned that the ultimate decision about who is appointed to the authority would still rest with elected officials.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre, who has been serving as chairman of the District since his designee, Les Fillingame, stepped down, said he may want to appoint a member who is not an elected official. Not having that option, might eliminate the opportunity to appoint an authority of solid waste, if available, Favre reasoned.

However, Favre pointed out his appointment would still be subject to approval by the City Council.

He told Cowand that two supervisors would still have the right to serve on the board, if they so desired. It is expected that Cowand will continue to serve, along with Pullman, if a new landfill is located in his District 2, which includes the buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Center.

The Mayor of Waveland is automatically a member of the new Authority, and he will also have the option of making an additional appointment.

Creation of an Authority might bring some unity to a governing board that has been divided on developing plans about how best to handle the county's solid waste disposal for the next 20 years.

To the chagrin of the two mayors, shortly after they took office in 1995, supervisors stopped the District from going ahead with it plans to open up an already-permitted landfill at Standard adjacent to the county rubbish site.

Instead, supervisors went off and sought land in the buffer zone for a combination rubbish site-landfill, but were stymied because the District could not embark on eminent domain proceedings to take the land.

An Authority is empowered to buy land or take it through eminent domain.

911 approved

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County supervisors have given their approval of plans to extend the Emergency 911 system to the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson told supervisors Monday that county tax assessor Eddie Murtagh has agreed to assign a person from his office to coordinate the updating.

Some time ago, Murtagh used his own funds to organize the 911 system for residents in the rural parts of the county.

"But, for some reason, the cities opted not to do it at that time. It needs to be done. It needed to be done a long time ago," said Peterson.

The sheriff said there are available monies in the Emergency 911 fund to pay the salary of one person out of Murtagh's office to handle the updating.

Peterson also revealed there will be talks in the near future, asking Bell South to use the new 228 area code for all of Hancock County.

He said the phone company had proposed to keep the 601 area code for the Flat Top and Leetown communities, but this would confuse emergency medical teams answering calls, and may endanger lives.

Hitchcock Elks fund set up

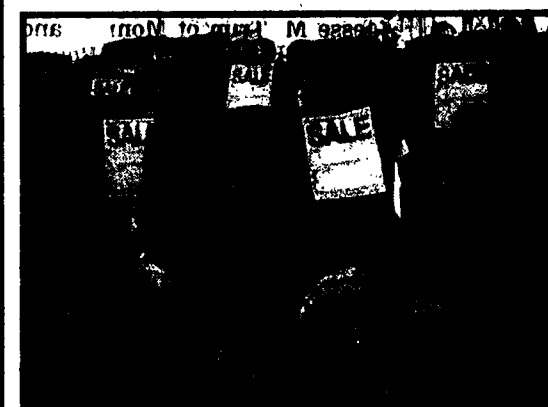

A public donation fund has been established by the Bay-Waveland Elks at Whitney Bank to collect money for Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hitchcock whose home was recently destroyed by fire.

The couple lost almost everything they owned in the fire, including their dog.

Ken Hitchcock, an Elks member, operates a barbershop on Coleman Avenue. He is also a member of American Legion, VFW, Law Enforcement and the Waveland Civic Association.

The Bay-Waveland Elks assist members in need through the "Leading Knight Fund", but demands this year have depleted the fund to dangerously low levels.

Therefore, the public donation fund to assist the Hitchcocks was established at Whitney and all money collected will be on deposit in the Whitney Bank system and made available to the Hitchcocks.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Congratulations are in order for my long-time friend Donald Dibol upon being named the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's 1997 Citizen of the Year.

Donald has been very active in the area for many years, and I am really glad that he was given the honor by the chamber.

Congratulations are also in order for Casino Magic Bay St. Louis receiving the chamber's Community Pride Award.

Casino Magic lends a lot to the area with beautification projects and involvement in many community projects.

Miss Chamber Daniel Lind has served the chamber well as a former student director. Now she is very active in many community functions representing the chamber. Congratulations to Daniel.

It was good to hear Rear Admiral Paul G. Gaffney, Chief of Naval Research, guest speaker, at the chamber installation of officers and Christmas banquet.

As many of you know, Adm. Gaffney was a resident of Diamondhead for many years, and since receiving his second star, now resides with his wife in the Washington, D.C. area.

Best of luck, too, to the officers and directors of the chamber for 1998.

Hancock County is blessed with many volunteer fire departments.

Just thinking back, when I was a volunteer firefighter in Waveland, there were only two volunteer groups in the entire county. At the time there were only two paid firemen in the county and they were in Bay St. Louis. Bay St. Louis and Waveland had Volunteer Fire Departments at that time.

Anyway, this afternoon the Clermont Harbor Volunteer Fire Department will hold a special fund raiser.

It will be a Tupperware Party from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the fire station at 5272 Clermont Blvd., off the Lower Bay Road.

All proceeds are to go towards the Clermont Volunteer Fire Department.

I am hoping the fund raiser will be a big success.

It was a great party on Wednesday for the Hancock County Senior Citizens and Retired Senior Volunteer Program members.

The Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post 139 and Auxiliary members do a fine community service by providing the annual Christmas banquet for our seniors.

The legionnaires and auxiliary members served a traditional holiday dinner of turkey and all the trimmings, and the seniors appeared to really enjoy themselves.

There were many gifts drawn for at the party. Thanks to the individuals and businesses who made them possible.

Of course, let us not forget the American Legion and Auxiliary and thank them for their efforts in providing and serving the holiday meal.

You think you're a patron.

We think you're a saint.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI SENATE

By State Senator
Scottie Cuevas

Holiday greetings mixed with thoughts for New Year, 1998 Legislature

The holiday season ushers in thoughts of what each of us has accomplished in 1997, as well as our hopes for 1998. I hope you and your family will have a Merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

The season also reminds me it's only a short time until the 1998 Legislative Session begins Jan. 6. I'd like to give you some thoughts about what has occurred in 1997 and what may come in 1998.

When the legislature convened in 1997, we knew we had some difficult tasks ahead. — Welfare Reform, pay raises for teachers and college faculties, as well as the challenge of finding a better way to financially support public education.

In the final analysis, we met those challenges and more, including a ban on same-sex marriages, stronger protection against illegal pesticide use, more regional jail facilities, statewide standards for mental health services and computerized voter rolls.

Long-time Capitol observers termed the session one of the most productive in our state's history.

I don't have a crystal ball for the 1998 Session, although it is clear that some interest is being raised in finding room in an $8.6-billion total budget to address concerns about support for economic development and local crime-fighting. The projected General Fund budget is $3.1 billion.

These priorities, plus continued support for public education, highlighted a new "road map" announced by the Joint Legislative Budget Committee on Nov. 18.

Last year about this time, the Joint Committee recommended many programs which ultimately became law. The 1998 plan looks like a good place to start in January and I look forward to working on the budget with my Senate colleagues during our deliberations in Jackson.

LOCAL ACCOMPLISHMENTS

The 1997 Legislative Session also produced some results I'm very proud of because they are issues the people of District 46 have been interested in seeing accomplished. Among them are:

— New fire trucks. Working with our Harrison and Hancock counties fire coordinators, we will be able to purchase several new fire trucks for each county.

— Fairground facilities. With hard work and dedication from our Hancock County Equine & Livestock Facilities Board and the Harrison County Fairgrounds Commission, we were able to get $130,000 matching funds for each county toward our fairground facilities.

— Waterfront facilities. Our Gulf Coast development brought home $1.5 million for District 46 in Tidelands funds from our casinos for installation or upgrading of boat launches, piers and harbors.

— Pearl River Community College. One promise I made was to increase Pearl River Community College's presence in Hancock County. With the help of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and its Education Committee, we are getting closer to making it a reality.

— NASA/USM Facility. We also were able to get $3 million in state bond funds for the NASA/USM facility. This will be matched with federal money to expand the site.

GROWTH CONTINUES

Mississippi is experiencing continued economic growth, and state government is fortunate to have the resources to carry out a wide variety of services on behalf of our citizens.

The budget isn't only growth, in this instance. It includes a $17.2 million tax cut for married couples passed during the 1997 session. When the tax is completely phased in, $46.7 million will be back in the hands of taxpayers and unavailable for state spending each year.

While revenue growth has enabled the Legislature to fund a variety of programs, the budget has several "safety net" features enacted in recent year, especially the rule which limits appropriations to 98 percent of available funds and creates a cushion for possible revenue shortfalls.

One other bit of news: No funds from the $172-million tobacco industry's settlement to Mississippi are being considered within the upcoming budget because the funds are still under the jurisdiction of a federal court and aren't in the State Treasury yet. I'm looking forward to getting to Jackson to learn more about these funds and what restrictions, if any, will be placed on them.

During the holidays, please let me know if you have questions or problems you believe the Legislature could help you with. I appreciate the opportunity to represent you in the State Senate.

During the Legislative Session, Sen. Cuevas can be reached at P.O. Box 1018, Jackson, MS 39215, or at 601-359-3770.

These days, there are more good reasons than ever to join the bandwagon of United Way support.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Postal stick-on label on utility bills causes problems

Dear Editor:

If the current adage "The Customer Is King" is valid, I have the feeling that the people of Bay St. Louis can sympathize with France's King Louis XVI as he was being guillotined in the French Revolution.

A bit of an exaggeration? Yes, but only to make a point.

I am sure all of us in the Bay have noticed that there is a "nice" stick-on label put on Bay utility bills when mailed — put right over the important part of the bill — how much is owed!

The post office was asked if something else could be done so the customer would not be inconvenienced — reply: The stick-on comes right off when you peel it off.

Two comments. One: Can you imagine a Wal-Mart, Kmart or drug store (those who really feel the customer should not be inconvenienced by something they are doing) giving that answer to a customer? Actually doing something which inconveniences the customer!

Two: Sometimes the printing on the bill comes off with the stick-on. In that case the post office probably is aware that I can always add up the various items above the total. A bit more inconvenient, but why stop now?

Next the utilities department was asked if it would be possible to have the information printed on the bill so there would be no need to put a stick-on on the bill and have the amount owed covered up. The answer: It is not possible! The bill can't be changed!

Three final Comments:

1. Even though I am of Irish descent, I feel like the Frenchman Louis XVI at times.

2. (For the City Utility Department). The tax assessor has those bar codes printed on his bills already. I don't know who does the printing, but I am sure Eddie Murtagh (office, 467-0130) can give you that name.

3. Finally, I am not going to get my gas, water and mail from someone else. You know that! But, if I could...

Love our veterans

Dear Editor:

One of the greatest things that ever happened to me was becoming a member of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Its primary purpose is to help the veterans, and it has brought a sense of fulfillment into my life. When stressful things are happening to me, I help with the veteran projects, and am relieved of my strife.

A very overwhelming and heartrending feeling is to see the veterans smile and their faces light up. They now that when the auxiliary visits them, we are showing we care and are extending to them our love.

They have sacrificed and had awful experiences in order that we may still have and enjoy our freedom. By helping and being there for them it is showing our love and devotion for all that they have done.

If you love your freedom, thank a veteran!

May God bless them and keep them in His loving care.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial

From Mississippi Economic Council

Burnham deserves accolades

Across Mississippi expressions of gratitude are being heaped on Dr. Tom Burnham, who is stepping down as State Superintendent of Education.

They're deserved.

He raised the education bar. It wasn't easy, and at times his critics seemed to be spilling out of the woodwork. He insisted that schools be held accountable both academically and financially.

Today school officials know that there is a minimum level of acceptable achievement, and if they don't get the job done there are consequences which can include a state takeover.

There is also the 1997 Adequate Education Act which takes a giant step toward providing poorer districts with enough dollars to provide educational opportunities equal to the average in the state.

And let's not forget the highly-acclaimed tech-prep program which integrates academic and vocational education and gives students a true understanding of the value of an education.

Being the top educator in the poorest state in the union carries unique burdens that superintendents in more affluent states don't have to face. And let's not kid ourselves, all of the state's educational problems aren't resolved. Far from it.

Sticky issues remain such as how to attract and retain teachers in dirt-poor rural areas where third-world living conditions exist and student achievement levels are low. And the debate over low teacher pay just won't go away.

But the fact remains that Dr. Burnham did a remarkable job during his 5 1/2 year tenure. And he's leaving the state's public school systems in better condition than when he took the reins.

He made a difference. Thanks.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

"We are a country of older, fatter and less physically active people. We need to get people moving again and eating right again," states an upset Dr. Gerald Bernstein.

President-elect of the American Diabetes Association, the doctor is so alarmed by the scary figures on U.S. diabetics that he says it is time to play hardball with the American public's apathy toward the disease itself and its treatment.

Every year, 798,000 new cases are diagnosed, swelling the ranks of some 15.7 million Americans, nearly 6 percent, who are diabetics. Blacks led with a 33 percent jump since 1980, followed by American Indians, Hispanics and whites.

Aggravating these figures is the estimate of the Center for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta that 5.4 million American diabetics have not yet been diagnosed. This is a warning to those whose eating habits are out of control.

Juvenile-type (insulin-dependent) diabetes, where insulin is not manufactured at all by the body, accounts for 5 to 10 percent of cases and requires two to four daily injections of insulin. It is unclear whether diet can help this form.

Adult-type (non-insulin dependent) diabetes, in which at least some insulin is produced by the pancreas, usually occurs at or over the age of 40. This form is generally brought on by a fatty diet aggravated by physical inactivity.

Conventional medical knowledge allows only that this Type II diabetes can be treated with diet and drugs. While this is encouraging, the doctors seem to fail by grossly understating the case. It is obvious, diet and exercise can do much more.

First of all, going against conventional medical wisdom, the cause of a least adult-type diabetes would appear to be not overindulgence in sugar and starches, but rather the consumption of animal products and their derivatives.

According to recent analyses, based on the exclusive use of vegetables and their products in the diet, the culprit in the onset of diabetes is animal products and their derivatives whose cholesterol 'covers the cells' insulin receptors.

Unable to receive insulin because of their cholesterol coating, the cells soon become sugar-starved and sick. Within weeks after animal products and their derivatives are abandoned, newly grown cells are healthy and non-diabetic.

Of course, forsaking animal products must be joined to the consumption of raw vegetables, especially fresh juices. This quick turnaround of sick cells is possible because 20 million of our cells die each minute and must be replaced.

There are recent cases on record where severe diabetics, about to have a limb amputated, turned to the raw food and recovered health and use of the limb, plus a normal reading of their sugar level within a span of four to six weeks.

Reputed diabetes cookbooks touting such recipes as creole pork chops and macaroni and cheese are gross nutritional nonsense, unfortunately. We just cannot have our animal products and eat them too; at least not with good health.

Our great fortune is that God has given us the resources within our bodies to eradicate most diseases and ward them off for the future by regenerating healthy cells. All we have to do is feed those cells the proper fuel: raw vegetables.

Yes, I know this is culinary heresy and surely a wet blanket to food lovers. But, thank God, even a partial regimen of raw vegetable food works wonders in our bodies.

Bay warning to motorists

If you feel the need for speed during the holidays, consider another location besides Bay St. Louis.

"Our speed detection trailer is now properly marked and in operation. It's a warning to motorists in Bay St. Louis to slow down and the proof of their speed is right before their eyes," said Bay Police Chief Frank McNeil. In addition to the speed trailer, Bay PD has scheduled extra officers dedicated to traffic duty for the holiday weekend.

The trailer indicates in large LCD numbers the speed the motorist is traveling and the legal speed limit for the street on which they are traveling. An officer is present to operate the trailer's radar and to additionally caution motorists to reduce their speed to acceptable limits.

"We want Bay St. Louis residents and visitors to be safe year-round, but we'll be working overtime during the holidays to remind them to be safe and not sorry. Our speed detection trailer is one more investment in public safety by the City of Bay St. Louis. The trailer will be used year round throughout the city to protect motorists, pedestrians and cyclists," said Mayor Eddie Favre.

"We'll also be able to use this investment as part of our needed match for additional public safety grant funds in 1998. The trailer has features to count traffic, report peak hours for traffic and other reporting capabilities that will assist us in transportation and safety planning throughout the city."

Speeders beware

Don Orso, Chief Frank McNeil and Assistant Chief Dave Stepro show the public the police department's new speed detection trailer that motorists will see on the streets of Bay St. Louis beginning this month. PRCC's infrastructure project is complete Pearl River Community College has finished its $600,000 infrastructure upgrade.

PRCC business manager Ron Holmes told the PRCC board at its November meeting at the Forrest County Center that the new water tower was in operation and that sewer line repairs had been made.

He also said the water lines had been repaired and extended to include the new nursing and wellness center and that the separate irrigation system was complete.

"Our infrastructure can handle future demands," said President Ted Alexander.

"We have renovated or constructed more than 500,000 square feet of space over the last few years," said Alexander. "We now have the infrastructure to handle that much more space."

Alexander also reported that repair to the parking lot on the Hattiesburg campus was nearly complete and that the bid date for the Administration Building was set for Dec. 18.

Money is in place for renovation of the old Student Center into an Administration Building and the present Administration Building into a Computer Center.

Holmes said the $1.6 million network upgrade project was behind schedule, but it should be completed in the next four to five months.

In other business the PRCC board:

— approved a $634,463 October claims docket

— reviewed the Unrestricted Current Fund Statement of Expenditures

— reviewed Grants and External Funding report for October

— discussed PRCC's proposal and potential for a regional economic development plan which includes advanced technology training

— heard reports from the college's deans and directors

— was invited to Phi Theta Kappa's Faculty and Staff Appreciation Day and Regional Legislative Committee meeting Nov. 13.

— was reminded that the December board meeting is scheduled for Dec. 2 on the Poplarville campus.

USM prof's Civil War book wins prestigious award

A University of Southern Mississippi psychology professor and administrator has won a national history award for a book he wrote about Louisiana's first officially sanctioned black soldiers during the Civil War.

Dr. James G. Hollandsworth, who has served since 1989 as USM's associate vice president for academic affairs, accepted the commendation from the American Association of State and Local History during the group's annual awards program in Denver, Colo.

His book, The Louisiana Native Guards, published by Louisiana Press, received the AASLH's certificate of commendation, the organization's most prestigious recognition for achievement in the preservation and interpretation of local, state, provincial and regional history.

"This excellent book presents the first detailed coverage of an extremely important, heretofore neglected aspect of Civil War history," said Arthur W. Bergeron Jr. of the Louisiana Department of Tourism.

"Hollandsworth has demonstrated that these African-American soldiers paved the way for the acceptance of blacks as a part of the United States Army."

Bergeron said Hollandsworth's book "is exhaustively researched and well-written, and it should find a warm reception from scholars and buffs alike."

Doug Thompson of the Arkansas Democrat Gazette said the book "has the harshness of truth from cover to cover" and "adds facts — grueling, sweating, hearting facts about how we came to be the country we are."

Although a successful psychologist, Hollandsworth, whose BA is in history, has maintained an interest in Civil War history that dates back to the late 1950s when he first began reading about it.

He was researching a book on Nathaniel P. Banks when he first became interested in the Louisiana Native Guards. His biography of Banks will be published by LSU Press in 1998.

Hollandsworth, a USM professor for 21 years, has previously published two books and numerous articles on the physiological bases of human behavior and mental disorders.

He received a BA in history from Davidson College in 1966, a master's degree in physiology and biophysics from the University of Mississippi Medical Center, and a doctorate in counseling psychology from the University of North Carolina in 1975.

The Louisiana Guards is available at the USM bookstore. The book's website address is www2.netdoor.com/~jghbook.htm

Welfare change going one step at a time

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Getting thousands of Delta welfare recipients off the welfare rolls and into jobs is a day-by-day, person-by-person task for the agencies charged with doing it.

"We're just starting," said Jean-Marie Hill, executive director of the Washington Warren Issaquena Sharkey Community Action Agency (WWISCAA). "Our goal is to successfully place clients in jobs. We're very confident that we will achieve our goal."

WWISCAA this summer signed a contract with the state Department of Human Services to be the job placement agency for a 10-county Delta region, including Washington, Sunflower and Bolivar counties.

"The area is certainly a challenge," said Edwin Henry, director of DHS' Division of Economic Development. "It's our highest caseload region, and we also have the largest number of high unemployment counties."

Slowly but surely, however, caseloads have been dropping. Between July and September in Washington County, the number of caseloads dropped 4 percent, from 1,506 families with adults to 1,441. From March to July, the dropoff was even higher—statewide it was 19 percent.

By the end of October, 44 people in Washington County had been placed in jobs, at places ranging from Fruit of the Loom to Morrison's restaurant, according to a WWISCAA job developer.

But not all who leave the welfare program have gone into jobs. Some, like 23-year-old Greenville resident Sharon Thomas, have opted to drop off the welfare rolls and rely on child support and other outside sources of income before participating in WWISCAA's work program.

The key, Hill said, is to "be able to sell (welfare reform) in a positive manner to employers ... and prepare the clients to sell themselves to employers."

Hill challenged the common perception that welfare recipients are unskilled and unprepared for the work place.

"Lots of these clients have skills," she said. "And many of them want to work."

"When you sum it up, it's a big attitudinal adjustment," she said. "I personally believe that welfare reform is one of the best things that could have happened. We just have a big task ahead of us in terms of the attitudes. That's what will determine the success of this project."

Mississippi implemented its welfare reform program in October 1996 after Congress passed the Federal Welfare Reform Law.

Called Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, or TANF, the program is charged with getting 30,000-plus families off welfare and getting able-bodied adults into jobs.

TANF replaced Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), with a more work-oriented series of requirements. It also replaces Mississippi's Work First program, which used Washington County as one of six pilot counties in which to implement its welfare-to-work program.

Disabled, elderly and otherwise ineligible recipients are still exempted from work requirements. Furthermore, those who receive food stamps but not a welfare check—more than 4,100 families in Washington County—are not required to participate in the TANF work program, according to Henry.

For everyone else getting a welfare check, however, the time limits are stricter, the penalties stiffer.

WWISCAA has hailed Felicia Fields as an early example of a welfare reform success story in Washington County.

Hired after two weeks in a job readiness class, 22-year-old Fields started working in August as an office clerk with Cunningham Insurance Agency—the first paid job she's had since she graduated from Leland High School in 1994.

Her minimum wage salary lets her take home $762 a month—"a lot more" than the $213 she was getting each month in public assistance and the $96 in food stamps, she said.

Fields' boss, Kevin Cunningham, benefits, too. The government subsidizes Cunningham for all but $1 of her $5.15 hourly wage for six months because he offered Fields on-the-job training.

Brenda Hampton of Leland, who has been on welfare for the last four years, said the work program was a way to ensure that her children won't get cut off from the support they need.

When the 39-year-old mother of two first heard about the welfare reform laws—and learned she would have to get a job or lose her benefits, she resisted the idea. But then she changed her mind.

"I figured that I couldn't see the kids without their Medicaid," she said. "That was the important thing: the Medicaid."

TANF continues to provide support services, such as Medicaid and child care, but it adds time limits and has stronger penalties against those who do not comply with the program.

Many staff members involved in the program agree that the biggest challenge in reforming the welfare system will be changing attitudes.

"Assistance for families has crippled a lot of families," said Lorine Edwards, who teaches a job readiness class in Washington County. "They think, 'Why should I look for a job?'"

"Some are afraid—If I go to work, I'm afraid I'll lose everything," Edwards said. "Now that they know they're eventually going to lose their benefits anyway, they look to us for help."

To administer TANF, the department divided the state into nine regions Q including a 10-county area covering most of the Delta—and awarded contracts to agencies like WWISCAA to administer the job placement program in each region.

The program in Washington County started up in July 1997. Sunflower and Bolivar counties started in August. By mid-December, all 82 counties are expected to be online, Henry said.

As before, case managers continue to determine whether individuals or families are eligible for benefits; case managers also determine who is exempt from the job requirements and refer everyone else to WWISCAA's job placement program.

The placement program involves several component, ranging from literacy assessment to placing people in actual jobs—and ensuring they fit well enough to stay on a long-term basis.

Rather than being paid a set contract fee, WWISCAA is paid monthly by DHS according to its success rate in placing people in jobs and keeping them there.

Job placement contractors across the state, including WWISCAA, can get a maximum fee for each welfare recipient they place in a job and keep there. The fee among the nine state regions averages $1,000, Henry said, although he did not name WWISCAA's specific fee.

Library's Holiday Tree Gala winners announced

More than 500 people attended the Hancock County Library System's Holiday Tree Gala Sunday at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

Trees decorated by more than 50 businesses, organizations and schools were on display and will remain in the library until Friday, Dec. 20.

Gather Ye Rosebuds won first place in the six-foot tree category with the Hancock County Adult Education Program placing second and the Extension Learning Ladies placing third. Gather Ye Rosebuds' theme was "A Garden Party" and features fresh roses. "A Cajun Christmas" was the theme of the second place tree.

In the three-foot category, first place went to Lee Animal Clinic, who used animals and hay to decorate their tree. The Bay-Waveland Garden Club placed second, with a tree decorated with fresh fruit. Paper Moon secured the third place ribbon, with a tree featuring Elvis memorabilia.

In the youth category, Bay-Waveland Headstart received the first place ribbon. Their tree was decorated with ornaments hand-made by the students. Hancock County Schools saluted county businesses with their ornaments and received second place. Armand's Restaurant received the third place ribbon, with a tree of ornaments made from can lids created and designed by the children of their employees.

A special award went to Diamondhead Academy, whose ornaments were made from aluminum soft drink cans.

Library's story hour

The weekly children's story hour, scheduled each Wednesday at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library and every other Thursday at the Kiln Library, will not be held during the holidays.

WWISCAA gets 20 percent of its fee after it gets a person through a literacy assessment and job readiness program, another 20 percent after the client is placed in a job. The remaining 60 percent hinges on WWISCAA's ability to keep clients in the job—30 percent if the client stays for three months, the remaining 30 percent if the client works for six months.

"Job developers should be touching base with that employer every few weeks to make sure the employer is happy," Henry said. "Try to resolve any issues."

There's an extra bonus if WWISCAA is able to place 25 percent of all clients who start the TANF program into jobs by the end of a year, he added.

Hill said WWISCAA is prepared to meet the challenge.

"WWISCAA is totally involved with this project," she said. "Whatever our contract says, that's what we're going to do."

worth everything that everybody did," said Gene Phillips of Phillips Aviation, the long-time FBO at Stennis, whose firm, along with the Exxon Corporation, contributed the aviation fuel for the day's flights. An FBO, or fixed-base operator, provides fuel and maintenance services for airports and often, as Phillips has done for many years, provides communication advisory services for departing and arriving aircraft.

Phillips comments bore out a prediction made by Mario Feola, vice president of the local chapter of the EAA, at the start of the day's activities.

"You are going to see the most excited kids you can imagine," Feola said as he began a safety briefing for participating pilots. "They may be a little nervous when they go up, but when they come down you'll see smiles as broad as their faces."

Feola, along with his wife

Charlotte, the treasurer, and aided by Marty Duke, the chapter president, organized the event, which had been in the making for months. Both Feola and Duke, in their own airplanes, piloted several of the youngsters' flights. Feola first flew a high-wing Cessna and then switched to his sleek, low-wing Mooney. Duke flew a sturdy Fairchild, a type of airplane with a storied history, dating back to World War II and service that included submarine hunts.

The pilots' activities proved highly successful, attracting participants from a radius of more than 60 miles, including military officers bringing youngsters from Keesler Air Force Base and the New Orleans Naval Air Station.

The pilots flying them and those aiding with ground services, numbering about a dozen, represented a growing chapter that now includes more than 70 members, many of them from an active neighborhood of flyers clustered near the Diamondhead Airport, as are the Feolas, Duke and his wife Belinda, who is the chapter secretary.

The Young Eagles is a program dedicated to the idea that young people represent the future of aviation and that a knowledge of aviation is a vital part of the education of young Americans.

The program's sponsor and originator, the Experimental Aircraft Association, is an organization what was founded in the 1930s by a group of flyers interested in building and flying their own airplanes and by antique aircraft enthusiasts, but it now numbers hundreds of thousands of members, including many who are interested not only in these but in all other sectors of general aviation and in all types of aircraft.

Federation seeking nominations of outstanding conservationists

Know someone who is a devoted conservationist? Consider nominating them for a prestigious Mississippi Conservation Achievement Award.

The Mississippi Wildlife Federation is soliciting nominations for their 38th Conservation Achievement Awards Program. This annual event serves to recognize the outstanding work of Mississippians to conserve, protect and enhance the state's natural resources.

"It's like the Oscar Awards for conservationists," said Lonnie Bailey of Greenwood, MWF president.

"Many of these people and organizations rarely receive thanks or any recognition for what they do, so we try to make this awards program very special for them. I think it also inspires them and all of us to continue trying to improve our quality of life here by taking care of our land."

The Federation will be accepting nominations in the following categories until Dec. 15:

- * Conservationist of the Year (Governor's Award)
 - * Wildlife Conservationist
 - * Fisheries Conservationist
 - * Soil, Air and Water Conservationist
 - * Forest Conservationist
 - * Youth Conservationist
 - * Conservation Educator
 - * Conservation Communicator
 - * Conservation Officer
 - * Hunter Education Volunteer Instructor
 - * Conservation Legislator
 - * Corporate Conservationist
 - * MWF Affiliate of the Year
- Anyone may nominate a person, organization or business, and all categories are open to both professionals and volunteers except the Hunter Safety Education Instructor who must be a non-paid volunteer.

A one- to two-page typed nomination describing the accomplishments of the nominee during 1997 should include the name, address and phone number of the nominee.

The awards ceremony will be March 12 at Primos Northgate in Jackson. Each award recipient will receive a special wildlife statuette designed exclusively for this awards program.

For information or a nomination brochure, contact MWF at 353-6922, or send an e-mail to mwf@netdoor.com.

Stroh certified

The Liaison Council on Certification for the Surgical Technologist (LCC-ST) announced that Patricia Chevis Stroh has successfully passed the national surgical technologist certifying examination and has been awarded the title of certified surgical technologist (CST). Certification, a voluntary national credential, is the means by which surgical technologists demonstrate to their employers, other health care professionals, the public and their peers that they are knowledgeable in the principles of science and patient care that are unique to surgical technology.

will gain invaluable research data and project solutions, while graduate students and university faculty and staff members further their studies and provide a valuable service to the state and local community. As an added bonus, the money that is provided will be spent at our universities and colleges, rather than possibly leaving the state."

Robinson said in the past, implementation of individual research contracts has taken as long as nine months. Now, through this agreement, approval may be granted in a matter of days, which will save both time and money.

MSU will serve as a central clearinghouse for the administration of the contract and as a central repository for the data and products resulting from studies and projects.

MDOT teams with MSU for research, development

The Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT), upon approval by the Mississippi Transportation Commission and the Federal Highway Administration, has entered into a $5 million agreement with Mississippi State University for transportation research and technology development, according to Robert L. Robinson, MDOT executive director.

Robinson said the five-year agreement will be coordinated through MSU and open to participation from all state institutions of higher learning at no net cost to Mississippi taxpayers.

Depending on the nature of the project, either state or federal funding will be transferred from MDOT to the institution for reimbursement of all research costs.

"Everyone wins in this agreement," Robinson said. "MDOT

Soccer roundup

Lady Tigers shut out OLA 3-0; SSC downs Bay

BY RANDY PONDER

The Bay High Lady Tigers beat crosstown rival Our Lady Academy 3-0 in a big district matchup Friday night at Rockchaw Stadium in high school soccer action.

The undefeated and first place Crescents had won six straight games to start the season. Bay High was in second place with a record of 4-1. Both teams, who have been in the state playoffs the past two years, feature skilled players that have played together for several years.

OLA seemed to have the early momentum, taking several shots on goal, only to be turned away by a great individual performance by goal keeper Sky Thomas.

The Crescents' first scoring opportunity came when Kristin Cannon broke free right up the middle of the field. Cannon, who has scored 18 goals this year, was one on one with the Lady Tiger goalie. Thomas left the box and ran out to take on the challenge head to head, diving on the ball and covering just as Cannon attempted the kick.

The Crescents came right back with a hard kick from 20 yards out.  knocked the ball down and fell on top as several OLA players converged.

Just moments later, OLA took another hard line drive kick from the left sideline, about 25 yards out that appeared to be heading into the top right corner of the Bay High net. Thomas jumped up at the last second and got just enough of the ball to deflect it onto the top of the crossbar and out of play.

The Lady Tigers drove down the field and got a big break when one of the Crescent defenders was charged with a hand ball violation. Andie Fillingame took the direct kick from about 20 yards out and hammered it towards the goal. OLA keeper Lynn Dubuisson knocked the ball away, but Bay High's Keely Marshall was there to boot it home for the first score of the game.

At halftime of the cold, rainy contest, Bay High led 1-0.

The Lady Tigers quickly scored to start the second half. Fillingame got the goal on another direct kick from about 25 yards out on the left side. The ball sailed high, landing just in front of the net and bounced past the keeper for a 2-0 Bay High advantage.

OLA missed a golden opportunity to get back into the game when a penalty kick went wide left of the Lady Tiger goal.

Amanda Kingston then scored Bay High's final goal on a breakaway down the left sideline. Her kick, almost from the corner, hit the back of the net over the outstretched hands of the keeper.

The Lady Tigers continued to play aggressively and had several more chances to score, only to be denied by excellent defensive play of Dubuisson in goal.

The Lady Tigers will host the Gulfport Lady Admirals Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

OLA will host Mercy Cross Monday at 7 p.m. The junior varsity will play at 5:30 p.m.

SSC 5 Bay High 1

The home standing St. Stanislaus Rockchaws remained undefeated with a 5-1 victory over the Bay High Tigers Friday night in high school soccer action.

Nick Middleton and Justin Wadsworth scored two goals each to spark the Rocks. Philippe Michel also scored for St. Stanislaus. Jonathan Gagnon had two assists. Middleton, A.J. Pace and John Rich each had one assist as the Rocks improved to 6-0.

Jeff Rose accounted for the Tigers' lone goal.

Rock coach Andy Kivilan credited the defense for the win. "Kile Foster, Ronnie Vaney, Jimmy Saucier, Brandon Lewis and Roger Ridgeway did an excellent job of shutting down their offensive threat," Kivilan said. "They have been doing this all year. Neil Farrow had another outstanding game in goal. This was a well-played game. We were able to take advantage of opportunities to get us going."

Bay High, 4-3, will host Gulfport Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. St. Stanislaus will host the Admirals next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Basketball roundup

Tigers maintain first

BY RICHARD MEEK

Bay High's rise to the top of District 7-4A continue, with Friday night's heroics coming from the most unlikely of sources.

The Tigers took a 12-point halftime lead and hung on for a 71-56 victory over Columbia at the Tigerdome.

Center Tank Williams, a tenacious player on defense who is normally not considered an offensive threat, led the Tigers with 20 points. Williams also had 10 rebounds and five steals.

Three other Tigers scored in double figures, led by Reion Galloway with 19 points. Stevie Lizana added 14 points and Mark Price 13.

Lizana also had four steals. Bay High is 8-3 overall, and 3-0 in district play under second year coach Doug Bazell. The Tigers and Lady Tigers play at Hancock on Tuesday night and at Petal on Friday.

Picayune 94, Hancock 54 — The Maroon Tide broke open a close game by outscoring the Hawks 27-5 in the third quarter.

Picayune, 7-3, 3-1, led 42-28 at the half, but led by as many as 38 in the decisive third quarter.

Jonathan Bender, who was held scoreless in the second quarter by a double-teaming Hawk defense, led the Tide with 20 points, 14 in the second half. Nick Wilkes added 18 points, Chris Brown 14 and Whitney Smith 12.

Donnie Carver scored 17 points and Kimmy Ladner 13 for the Hawks, 3-8, 1-2.

After Tuesday's game with Bay High, the Hawks play host to Stanislaus on Friday. Hancock will not play again after Friday until early January in the Picayune tournament.

GIRLS

Bay High 62, Columbia 21 — The Lady Tigers' easy victory preserved Bay High's first place standing in the both the girls and boys divisions.

Christina Bradley led the unbeaten Lady Tigers with 23 points. Chanda Haley scored 12 points and Shenna Ambrose 12 for Bay High, 15-0, 3-0.

Haley also had nine rebounds and Ambrose added nine assists.

Bay High led 34-8 at the half, and 47-13 at the end of three quarters. Columbia was held to three points in the second quarter.

The win sets up Tuesday's showdown with the Lady Hawks, who are also unbeaten in district play. Bay High defeated Hancock 50-32 in the Hancock County Tournament earlier in the season at Hancock. In that game, the Lady Hawks were held scoreless in the third period.

Hancock 61, Picayune 44 — Lady Hawk standout guard Jessica Pucheu scored 14 points, had seven assists and made three steals in Hancock's victory in Picayune.

Vicky Ladner added 13 points and Mindy Ladner 10 for Hancock, 10-4, 4-0. Mindy Lander and Vicki Ladner had six rebounds each.

The Lady Hawks raced to a 21-4 first quarter lead and led 32-14 at the half.

THURSDAY

Picayune 59, St. Stanislaus 47 — Ricky Bennett scored 20 points and Jonathan Bender 18 in Picayune's District 7-4A victory at Stanislaus. The Rocks were led by Junior Davis with 14 points.

The cold shooting Rocks trailed 25-18 at the half.

The loss dropped Stanislaus to 5-6, 1-2. Stanislaus plays host to Hancock on Friday, and then hosts the annual War on the Shore Saturday, which will feature 10 teams from Louisiana and Mississippi.

TUESDAY

Oak Grove 74, Hancock 40 — The Hawks were held to a total of 16 points in the second and third quarters in a District 7-4A loss at Oak Grove.

Jeremy Garriga led Hancock with eight points.

War on the Shore Saturday

St. Stanislaus' annual War on the Shore is scheduled for Saturday at the Rock gym.

The event features some of the top teams from Mississippi and Louisiana. The feature matchup will pit top-ranked Provine from Jackson and undefeated Biloxi.

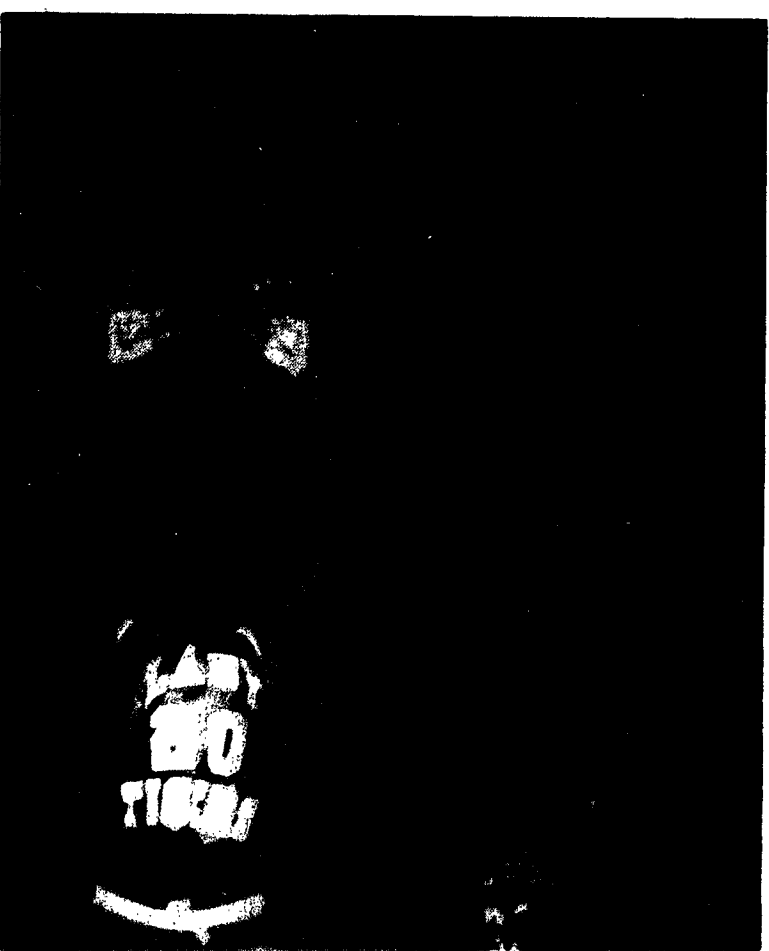

Provine features Aaron Harper, David Sanders and Justin Reed, three of the top rated players in the Jackson area.

Varsity action begins at 2:30 p.m. when tradition-rich Piney Woods faces Picayune. The Maroon Tide is led by Jonathan Bender, one of the state's top players as a junior.

At 4 p.m., Brother Martin High School from New Orleans will square off against Gulfport. The Crusaders' deliberate style will be tested against the running Admirals.

Jackson and Biloxi will play at 7 p.m. The host Rocks close out the action at 8:30 when they play Brandon.

A freshman game is scheduled at 10:30 a.m. against SSC and Brother Martin. At noon, the Rocks' junior varsity will play Catholic of Baton Rouge. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for students.

Ditka Dialogue

• (On opening remarks)

"Well, we have a few guys banged up. That's for sure, so we're going to have to wait and see how things go this week, but we have a lot of guys hurt. A lot of that had to do with maybe some of the coverage at the end on special teams because a lot of those guys aren't cover guys. But we still have to do a better job."

• (On injuries)

"Mark Fields has a bad neck which he had going into the game, so he'll be kind of day-to-day. Kendall Gammon has a knee sprain. Brett Bech has a hand fracture. He'll be put on IR. Darren Mickell has a bad shoulder. Donovan Greer has a quadriceps contusion and Jared Tomich had a concussion. He spent last night in a hospital. He's out now. And Richard Harvey has a very bad turf toe which he played on because he had to play, because we were down to very few linebackers. And Ink Alcaga has a bad ankle sprain in this game, coming out of this game."

• (On the possibility of placing Alvin Harper on IR)

"We can't. It's not a six-week injury. We can only go by what they tell us. If it's not a six-week injury, we can't put him on IR because the league doesn't allow it."

• (On Harper playing in the final game)

"I don't see how it's possible, but we'll try."

• (On if he has anyone in mind who he wants to bring in)

"Yeah, I have a couple of people in mind, but it doesn't matter what I have in mind. Right now we may need linebackers, so it doesn't matter if I have something else in mind or not. We'll have to wait and see on that and see how these linebackers respond. But we probably still need one."

• (On if he was pleased with the physical play of his team on Sunday)

"No. We've got to play more physical, but I wasn't displeased. We have got to tackle better. We've got to hit better. It's not a big issue, but I know that if you're going to be a good football team, you have to do those things better. That's all I'm saying. We talked about that. There has to be more of a sense of urgency. Whether you're 14 points up or 14 points down, every play can mean the game and every play has to be played accordingly. You've got to keep your head in the game."

• (On Fields' injury)

"It's numb. His arm gets numb when he gets a shot in the shoulder or hits with his shoulder."

• (On why the team didn't run the ball more)

"I don't know. You have to talk to Danny (Abramowicz). He's upstairs if you want to talk to him. Ask him."

• (On his read on it)

"None. I have no read on it. It's a moot question if we don't give up 21 points in the last six minutes. It's really a moot question so it doesn't matter. We scored 27 points. One of our game plans which was very effective was to get the ball to the tight end, although it didn't work out that way. You can't do everything all the time, but I'd like to run it more than 12 times. I'm not happy with that, but we were still ahead in the game. But 21 minutes on the field is going to kill you most of the time because it all adds up. You take no time off the clock. You keep your defense out there."

• (On if he realized during the game the discrepancy between runs and passes)

"I really didn't pay too much attention to it. I was too worried about what was going on on the field. I knew we weren't running the ball a lot. That was evident."

• (On being more subdued after this loss)

"Well, I'm not going to get excited anymore. That's finished. It's done. It doesn't matter. It's only a football game. Six billion people don't care about it in this world. Did you know that? That's only this world. What about the other ones?"

• (On what other worlds there are)

"I don't know. There must be one out there somewhere. They keep making movies about it."

• (On if the NFC West has a bad reputation)

"I don't care. I don't know. I have no comment on anything like that."

• (On Eric Allen)

"Well, he played a good football game for three quarters and then in the fourth quarter he had some problems. That happens to everybody."

• (On saying it's just a game and not sounding like Mike Ditka)

"It is really. It is just a game, really, in the sense that... what do we judge ourselves on? People judge us on wins and losses and I understand that. But I've got to look at the film and say, 'Are we getting better?' We're getting better. We really are. We're a better football team than we were a week ago, and we won a week ago. And we won against a team that beat this team."

• (On the improvement from last week to this week)

"They've got 13 points on the board midway through the fourth quarter. I think that's pretty good improvement right there. I see a team that's pressuring the quarterback. They're moving the ball some, but they're not doing anything great until they made the big plays in the fourth quarter. Offensively I think we did some good things."

• (On how Mario Bates could get back in his good graces)

"He's not in my bad graces. I've got to keep eight inactive players. Right now if I'm going to hand the football to somebody, I'm going to hand it to Ray (Zellars) or I'm going to hand it to Troy (Davis) — right now."

• (On wanting Bates back next year)

"It's almost like talking about the past. He made a great run against Detroit. He made a great run against Chicago, right?"

• (On Why Bates can't get on the field)

"What do you mean he can't get on the field? As I said, many are called, few are chosen."

• (On Billy Joe Hobart)

"Billy Joe is fine. A young quarterback or a quarterback who hasn't had a lot of experience is going to learn you can't take a bad play and then make it a disastrous play. Bad play, live with it. But that one he was trying to make a special play and of course he had nothing on the ball when the guy had a hold of him. To answer your question, I like the guy a lot. I like what he does. I like what he brings to the table. I like how he plays. I like how he handles himself on the field and off the field. I like his toughness. I like his leadership. There's nothing I don't like about the guy, to be honest with you."

• (On the plays Allen was beat)

"It was man-to-man coverage, that's all it was. All of them were man-to-man."

• (On what salary Allen deserved for his play this year)
"You're really digging, aren't you? I don't know what guys make. I don't know what you make. How would I know what he makes?"

• (On wanting Allen back next year)
"Sure."

Lower capital gains taxes: everybody wins

Which would you rather do — spend your money, invest it, or pay taxes on it? Of course, most of us would prefer one of the first two options. But thanks to the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, the third option is now a little less painful.

The Taxpayer Relief Act, signed last August, essentially reduces the top tax rate on long-term capital gains to 20 percent — 8 percentage points less than the previous top rate of 28 percent. That rate applies to gains on investments held more than 18 months.

While these tax cuts are good news, it's important to remember that the tax tail should not wag the investment dog. In other words, just because taxes are lower doesn't necessarily mean you should sell an investment.

However, you might want to take advantage of the lower rates to sell a stock if the outlook for that company has deteriorated, or if the sale would improve the overall balance or diversification of your portfolio. If a large portion of your portfolio is invested in one stock, the tax cut gives you a tremendous opportunity to balance your portfolio.

For instance, people often accumulate stock through their employer, and their portfolios become overweighted in that particular stock. Many of these people have been resistant to selling their stock if 28 percent of their gains would be taxed. Lower tax rates, however, make this idea more appealing. The benefit of better diversification could outweigh the cost of the taxes; spreading your assets among a greater variety of stocks will reduce the impact of an adverse development in any one company.

Not only are the tax cuts good for investors, they're also beneficial for the stock market in general, because they increase the long-term after-tax return of growth investments such as common stocks and equity mutual funds. Despite this fact, some observers claim that lower capital gains taxes bring so many sellers into the market that they will drive the market down. It's true, lower rates will cause some investors to sell their stock, but many of these people will reinvest their proceeds in other equities.

In addition, many of the predictions of negative market consequences are based on history. The two instances in the post-World War II era when capital gains taxes were lowered were in 1978 and 1981. Although the market did decline in both cases, that period was marked by OPEC price hikes, rising inflation and a stagflation economy that likely had a bigger impact on financial markets than the capital gains tax cut.

The Taxpayer Relief Act also created a number of saving incentives, including a complete overhaul of individual retirement accounts.

These incentives should bring many new investors into the equity markets.

Clearly, lower capital gains tax rates are good for everybody — individual investors, U.S. companies and the overall stock market.

If you have questions about the new tax rates and how they might affect your investments, consult your tax adviser and investment professional.

Coast Electric refunds $1.4 million

Coast Electric Power Association is sending its customers a special holiday gift. On Dec. 12, the company issued more than 34,000 checks totaling $1,454,000. Release of the funds was authorized by the association's board of directors in accordance with company by-laws.

Unlike most companies that issue dividends only to their stockholders, Coast Electric shares its margins with its customers. Board President Gordon Lee says, "Our operations are designed to be highly cost-efficient. And because we are a cooperative business, owned by the people we serve, we return margins back to our customers," he said.

Current and former customers who received electricity from the company in 1974-1996 are eligible to receive a check. This year's $1,454,000 payment is the largest single capital credit reimbursement that Coast Electric has ever made.

Individual checks are determined by a customer's electric use per year and the company's total revenue and financial obligations. Amounts this year represent the remaining capital credits earned in 1974 plus 2 percent of the total allocated for the years 1975-1996. The checks averaged from $10 to $20,000.

Company General Manager Robert Occhi notes the significance of capital credit payments. "When you buy electricity from Coast Electric, you are making an investment in the company. The capital credit payment can be compared to a dividend that our customers earn from their investment," he said.

Occhi also reported that capital credit payments to customers are only one part of the electric company's success story.

"If Coast Electric rates were high, then a large capital credit retirement would not be that great of an accomplishment. However, that is not the case. Coast Electric has some of the lowest rates in the state and nation. In fact, our rates have actually declined over the past 10 years while many other utilities have had substantial rate increases," he said.

Additionally, Occhi announced that Coast Electric customers could see another rate reduction as early as February 1998.

"As we continue to achieve our efficiency goals, we are able to pass the savings along to our customers and lower their cost for electricity," he said.

Coast Electric Power Association serves over 54,000 customers in the rural and urban areas of Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties. The electric cooperative is known as one of the fastest growing companies in the state and nation. It is certain that the economic benefit of the company's capital credit payment will positively impact local businesses.

Ingalls, Bath Iron Works team up in bidding war for Navy warships

Associated Press
Ingalls Shipbuilding announced today the signing of a deal with Bath Iron Works and Lockheed Martin to design and produce the next generation of Navy warships destined to be the successor to the Arleigh Burke class of destroyers.

Ingalls officials said the three companies will share in the work on the program, which could run as high as $20 billion and involve the construction of 30 new destroyers and cruisers during the first 15 years of the next century.

Ingalls spokesman James W. McIngvale said the deal was signed Wednesday night.

Bath Iron Works confirmed the agreement a short time later, hailing it as a good deal for Maine and for the nation.

"Our agreement with Ingalls on the DD-21 program doesn't mean that we won't compete against them on other contracts in the future," said shipyard spokesman Kevin Gildart.

"Our goal is simply to create the best teams for a given task, in order to provide the best value to our customer, the Navy."

Bath Iron Works is located in Bath, Maine. Lockheed Martin's participation will be through its Government Electronic Systems of Moorestown, N.J.

BIW and Ingalls have competed for destroyer contracts for more than a decade and are looking ahead to the DD-21, the next generation of naval vessel, as the primary source of future work.

McIngvale said based on current plans by the Navy, contracts for trade studies and initial concepts are to be awarded to as many as three competing teams in 1998 with initial design contracts to be presented to two competing teams a year later. Construction options are expected to be awarded to one team in 2001.

McIngvale said BIW will serve as team leader and prime contractor through the technology development and engineering phases up to the Navy's final selection of the winning team. Ingalls would take over the detail design and ship construction. Lockheed Martin will serve as the system engineer and total ship information architect.

"Clearly, a Bath-Ingalls alliance would be a very strong competitor," said David Lackey, a spokesman for Sen. Olympia Snowe. But he wouldn't rule out the emergence of other bidders, such as New Orleans-based Avondale Industries or Newport News Shipbuilding in Virginia.

The DD-21 program was formerly known as the SC-21, or "surface combatant for the 21st century." It is expected to consist of 60 ships that incorporate a new generation of technology including stealth and weaponry designs.

The three-company partnership represents a dramatic shift for the two longtime rivals. Their competition has been the prime motivation behind BIW's planned $307 million modernization and expansion project, slated to begin as early as next spring.

About five years ago, the Navy switched to a multi-year procurement process that assigned the two yards an equal share of destroyer construction contracts. The change, applauded by the shipyards and the Pentagon, has made it easier for the contractors to plan their future work.

Ingalls Shipbuilding, with more than 12,000 employees, and BIW, with roughly 7,300, are the largest private employers in their respective states.

The two companies are the only builders of the Arleigh Burke destroyer. Bath was awarded "lead yard" designation on the program in 1985, which meant it would build the prototype and the majority of the anticipated 60-plus ships.

But the program is slated to be phased out in 2003, setting off a scramble for new work.

Bath officials recently mentioned that the Navy's abandonment of plans for an experimental arsenal ship would mean fewer ship contracts, leaving builders even more hungry for the SC-21 program.

"We need that desperately," Gildart said at the time. "I can't emphasize enough how much more important that becomes."

She has served as acting nursing director since early 1997. A 15-year employee of Hancock Medical Center, Gambino began as a graduate nurse at the Dunbar Avenue facility. She was a registered nurse on the medical/surgical floor for several years prior to a promotion to weekend house supervisor in the early 90's.

"Angie's concern for patients, knowledge of patient care and willingness to learn contributed to her ability to provide leadership through challenging times at the medical center led to her selection," said Leftwich. A graduate of Hancock High School, Gambino earned her degree as a registered nurse from Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College in 1984. She is currently enrolled in a satellite campus of the University of Phoenix.

She and her husband, Joseph Gambino, have two daughters, Brianna, 9, and Jenna, 3, both enrolled in the Hancock County

"Over the years, I have had the opportunity to be involved with so many families in our county... and I have shared in their joys and sorrows. That really touches your heart, and makes you want to provide them with the best care that they could possibly receive."

must set time limits for residents to do so.

At least 1,000 customers in the Shoreline Park area have already been hooked up. The sewerage is collected at a lift station located on Hwy. 603, then pumped to the treatment plant in Waveland.

The latest funding will extend sewerage hookups to another 380 customers on the south side of Hwy. 603. Only Avenue A and 1st Street will be without sewerage lines on the south side. Sewerage lines will be extended to that area in the next phase of funding, and some Shoreline Park residences on the north side of Hwy. 603 will also be added to the system.

News of the funding is expected to be an early Christmas present for Wastewater officials and supervisors once turned down for a $6.5 million grant that would have been used to sewer all of Shoreline and Bay-side Park subdivisions.

RDA officials said the total requested by Hancock County exceeded by 25 percent the amount available for each state, and asked Wastewater officials to re-apply and construct the sewer system in three separate phases. This funding will pave the way for first-phase construction.

The Wastewater District has also filed for a state revolving fund loan for $1.2 million, which would be used to extend sewerage into the Clermont Harbor and Lakeshore areas.

Officials are awaiting word on that funding request.

Zoning

chasing a home and placing it on your lot, your first step should be a visit to the state Health Department, located in the Human Resources Center on Longfellow Road.

Health Department inspectors will come out to your lot to determine whether it can tolerate a septic system or check the soil to see what kind of system you can use.

The fee for testing varies, and the Health Department promises to complete an on-site inspection as soon as possible. They will mail you a report, called, "a pink sheet," which tells you the type of wastewater treatment system that is recommended. This will help you determine the cost of installing your mobile home.

After you get the pink slip, call the county Planning Commission Office at 467-4157, and give Smith or assistant, Alicia Griffith, the address where you will be locating your mobile home.

They will tell you whether you will be locating in a flood zone, and if that's the case, more testing is required.

If you're in a flood zone, mainly south of Interstate 10, you will need to hire a surveyor to establish what height your mobile home has to be placed above the ground. The cost of the survey varies. Once the height elevation is determined, the Planning Commission will issue a flood zone certificate for a varying fee, and you can start preparing your home site.

The Planning Commission staff can also tell you whether a mobile home is allowed in the area.

In most cases, mobile homes are prohibited in zones that have been set aside for single-family residential living, but exceptions have been made, and you would have to pay a $35 fee and go before the Commission for a hearing on a request for a waiver.

Mobile homes are allowed as a "right" without a hearing in the eastern portion of Diamondhead, in a majority of the county that is zoned for A-1 Agriculture purposes and areas zoned for two or multi-family residential living units.

Mobile homes are allowed as a "conditional" use in areas zoned R-2, double family, and in highway and neighborhood commercial areas. To obtain a conditional use, a person must pay a fee and appear before the Planning Commission. A majority of supervisors must also approve if the Commission grants a conditional use.

dents not accessing the Internet and the super information highway."

Two classrooms will go on line with the laptops next spring, with the rest of the school scheduled to hook up at the beginning of the school year next September.

The program is innovative in that it expands educational opportunities for the students, and parents. Net Schools officials said. Students, teachers and parents will be trained on the computers, which will allow teachers to send notes home via E-mail. Parents will also have accessibility to their children's homework assignments, which will be stored in the computer.

Future plans call for adult education classes to be made available on the same laptops.

Additionally, teachers will be able to assign homework that will require research on the Internet, thus broadening a student's horizon beyond the textbook.

Net School official Jim Garrett explained how a teacher in South Carolina divided her class in half and assigned each group to research the pros and cons of cloning. Cloning was not yet in any of the textbooks, yet the Internet provided nearly 390 "hits," or articles of information.

"It is a way of strengthening a curriculum, and does not confine teaching to the textbooks," Garrett said.

"This is a way of supporting teaching with technology," said Jerry Caldwell of Net Schools. "Our dream is to have a computer for every child. That's the direction things are going."

"There can be extra scheduling through homework. We have students who look at homework differently because it's exciting to be on the Internet."

While at home, students will be able to hook up to the school through a network.

School administrators have little concern as to the durability of the units, company officials said. The laptops are made of magnesium, and as Garrett proved when he dropped his on the ground and then proceeded to step and stand on it, they can withstand abuse.

Caldwell said there are also several anti-theft devices built into each computer, the most significant being is that it shuts down when the prescribed amount of time initially entered into the unit expires.

Garrett said the computer also tracks a student's progress from month to month and year to year. Once issued, the student will keep the same computer, including through the summer months, until graduation.

Teachers may assign work over the summer months that students would be required to complete before the beginning of the next school year, school officials said.

The computers are being financed with some monies from the district's $20 million bond issue that voters approved last spring, and through funds from the state's Adequate Education Program Funds. The district will be receiving approximately $8 million in MAEPE funds, which will be repaid through low interest bonds.

Some of that money will be used in construction of the district's two new schools, as well as renovations at the other facilities.

Library Foundation has gifts that give back

Mosaic mural clay replicas, bronze inscribed leaves, book bags and other items are available from the Library Foundation as gifts for the holiday season.

In order to assist in supporting the programs and services of the Hancock County Library System, the Library Foundation provides opportunities to memorialize or honor loved ones, and the gifts give back to the community all year round.

Sculptured clay replicas of the library's mosaic mural, "Reverence — The Revival of a Community," were designed and created specifically for the Library Foundation by Jenise McCardell of Clay Creations in Bay St. Louis. The limited edition collectors' items are available for any new contribution of $150 or more.

The Foundation Tree, located in the Hwy. 90 foyer of the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, offers a unique opportunity to individuals, families, businesses and organizations to honor or memorialize someone annually.

Inscribed brass leaves are placed on the bronze, brass and plexiglass sculptured tree designed as a symbol of the importance of advocates for library services.

Anniversaries, birthdays and weddings can also be commemorated with bronze leaf inscriptions.

Heavy duty canvas tote bags with the library's logo are available for any new contribution of $15.

Further information on these and other memorial opportunities are available by contacting Mary Perkins in the development office of the library at 467-6836.

Are you buying safe toys?

During this gift-giving season, most adults will surprise a special child with a toy. Although toys are intended to delight and entertain, they can also be hazardous. This year an estimated 100,000 children will sustain a toy-related injury.

Innocent-looking toys such as marbles and balloons can become a choking hazard to small children. Other hazards include toys with small parts, sharp points and edges, toxic paint and flammable materials.

"Many toy-related injuries occur when parents overestimate their child's ability to handle a toy made for an older child," explains Cynthia Huff, coordinator of SAFE KIDS, a childhood injury prevention program of the Coalition for Citizens with Disabilities. "Parents should always use age recommendations noted on the packaging."

In June of 1994, President Clinton signed into law The Child Safety Protection Act, a federal toy labeling law which requires manufacturers to place warning labels on toys with small parts. The law calls for toys such as marbles, balloons and small blocks to be labeled as a choking hazard to young children.

Huff notes that injuries also occur when toys are used inappropriately. Toys which produce sound can harm a child's hearing when repeatedly held close to a child's ears. Chemistry sets and craft sets contain substances which can irritate eyes or skin if not used carefully.

Before children begin playing with new toys, parents should carefully read the labels and instructions. Parents should also take time to show children how to use toys correctly.

Make special note of toys designed only for outdoor use and craft kits with toxic substances. Older children should be informed of any special care needed when using or storing toys.

Mississippi SAFE KIDS has prepared the following list of tips to help insure that holiday toy purchases make safe gifts:

- Read all safety warnings and age recommendations.
- Do not purchase toys with small, removable parts for children under age 3.
- Inspect toys for sharp points or edges which may unintentionally cut or stab a child.
- Check to see if the toy has movable parts which could entrap fingers or toes.

- Make sure that propelled toys have soft, non-removable ends to prevent eye injuries.
- Only purchase electric toys for children over age 8.
- Avoid toys which produce loud noises which could harm a child's hearing.
- Consider all the children in a household when selecting a toy. Giving an older child marbles would be inappropriate if a toddler is in the home.

"Selecting a safe toy isn't difficult," says Huff. "And why would anyone want to give a child a toy which could unintentionally injure a child?"

For more information, contact the Mississippi SAFE KIDS at 969-0601 or 1-800-748-9420.

American Legion Unit 77 Auxiliary

The monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary Post 77 was Dec. 3 at the American Legion Hall on Coleman Avenue in Waveland.

Some of the members reported they were planning to attend the membership rally at Post 1 in Jackson Dec. 6. There will be an awards luncheon in Biloxi Dec. 11.

The unit strongly supports passage of the Flag Protection Amendment, and volunteers were recruited to write to Senators Trent Lott and Thad Cochran regarding this. A program for spreading interest in and respect for the flag in the schools of this area is being conducted.

The usual gifts to the patients of the VA Hospital in Gulfport were voted on plus the provision of funds for those veterans able to visit their homes during the season. Baskets being distributed to the needy will include toys for the families with children.

The Christmas party for members of both Post 77 and Unit 77 will be Dec. 20 with dancing to the music of Bill Connelly.

The president has asked for a good turnout at all Legion functions, including the scheduled mid-winter conference in Meridian Jan. 9-11.

Hancock County Lions Club

The Hancock County Lions Club in service to the community has sponsored two health fairs at Hancock North Central School. Eyes were screened, diabetes and glaucoma were checked. There were some 300 residents attending.

October 8, the World Service for the International Association of Lions Clubs and the Hancock County Lions Club served donuts and coffee to the Waveland Police and Fire Departments, the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and the emergency room of Hancock Medical Center in appreciation for all their devoted service to the community.

The Hancock County Lions Club sponsored the Eye Van and served four schools. Some 1,300 children were served with 226 referrals. The club has purchased six pair of glasses estimated at $600.

The club has collected 2,000 old eye glasses, which are sent to a central location and then distributed to help others. Lucille Boudreaux is chairman for this project.

Narfe party set Monday

The annual Buccaneer Chapter 1729, National Association of Retired Federal Employees, will hold its Christmas luncheon party Monday, Dec. 15 at noon at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

Entertainment will be provided.

20th Star Chapter DAR

Tara Michelle Graham, daughter of Terry Graham and the late Grace Graham, was recently chosen DAR Good Citizen for Sumrall High School. Graham was one of three seniors who demonstrated the qualities of dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism in the home, school and community and was chosen by the faculty. The senior class then selected the Good Citizen by voting.

Graham is an active member of the Beta Club, Recycling Club, FBLA and Spanish Club. She has also worked as a statistician for the Bobcat baseball team for the last three years. She is a member of Hayden Creek Baptist Church and is a fan of Sumrall High School sports.

Graham was sponsored by Twentieth Star Chapter Mississippi Society Daughters of the American Revolution. She will be honored in February at the chapter meeting with a certificate and pin.

Graham also will participate in the DAR Scholarship Contest, which includes an essay judged for state and national awards and scholarship money.

Twentieth Star Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution traveled back in time to Old Salem via tape tour at the November meeting. Members Shirley Nell Davenport, Betty Graham, and Frances Wilson told of the living history museum located in Winston-Salem, N.C.

The historic restoration recreates late 18th and early 19th century life in the Moravian church town and trading center called Salem. Costumed interpreters schedule activities according to the season.

Refreshments typical of the time period, gingerbread and hot cider, were served by the hostesses. Rebekah Ray, DAR junior member, reported on her attendance at Rosalie Day in Natchez. Rosalie, the most viewed home in Natchez, is owned by the MSDAR.

Twenty students from Our Lady Academy attended the 33rd session of the YMCA Youth Legislature session in Jackson in November.

OLA sophomore Emily Taylor, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Gene Taylor of Bay St. Louis, won her state office by a landslide (101-34). She was elected the 1998 president pro tem of the Senate.

Eleven members of the OLA delegation received honors. Sophomore Megan Pigott was given the honor of most outstanding senator. Pigott was also named an outstanding senator along with Taylor and senior Meredith Quinlan.

Four OLA delegates were named outstanding representatives, including seniors Ashley Artigues and Carrie Patterson and juniors Chevonne Daigre and Leslie More.

Other recognition was received by OLA delegates for their work during the session. Sophomore Sarah Luster received an officer citation. Artigues and senior Libby Floyd were given committee chair citations.

OLA submitted 10 bills during the session. Four of them were signed by the Governor: House Bill 58 by junior Erin Harshbarger and sophomore Jessica Vargas; House Bill 66 by Morel and junior Patricia Williams; House Bill 85 by Pigott and sophomore Allyson Vaughn; and House Bill 106 by Daigre and junior Leslie Esher.

'Merry Meissen' holidays at NOMA in December

Santa's already come to the New Orleans Museum of Art. Some treats are for the eyes only, but there is also a bevy of holiday gifts available in NOMA's Museum Shop.

In the galleries, visitors can see four extraordinary exhibitions: The Genius of Meissen: Porcelain Figures from the H. Lloyd Hawkins Jr. Collection; Grotesqueries: Form, Fantasy and Function in 19th Century European Ceramics; The Brooke Hayward Duchin Collection; Dunbar: Mining the Surfaces; and Bright, Bold and Shining: Copper Lustres from the Donald A. Meyer Collection. Each exhibition will remain open through Jan. 4.

The Genius of Meissen features 350 charming figurines crafted by the oldest and most famous porcelain manufactory in the western world. This will mark the first time that The Hawkins Collection, noted for its depth, has been on public display.

Grotesqueries offers the work of European ceramicists who were greatly influenced by the "rustic" creations of 16th century potter Bernard Palissy.

These 150 pieces are wonderfully scaled and decorated with vividly lifelike renditions of sea creatures, shells, coral and more.

Both exhibitions can be seen in the first-floor Ella West Freeman Gallery.

Bright, Bold and Shining features the always popular, beautifully glazed English copper lustre ware in the Cameo Gallery of the Lupin Foundation Center for the Decorative Arts.

New Orleans area artist George Dunbar is honored in Mining the Surfaces, a solo exhibition of his two- and three-dimensional works — refined geometric paintings and reliefs — in metal leaf. The works can be seen in the Contemporary Galleries on the second floor.

A retrospective of works by retired Louisiana State University art professor Walter Rutkowski opens Dec. 6 in NOMA's Prints and Drawings Galleries.

Walter Rutkowski Drawings, which features 51 of his eerie, darkly ironic large-scale works, will remain open through March 1.

In NOMA's Asian Galleries see In The Service Of The Shogun: Japanese Paintings from the Kano School, an exploration of a major artistic lineage in Japanese painting, through Dec 31.

Noma's Museum Shop, always a great place for finding just the right gift, is full of holiday goodies. Featured items include catalogues from The Genius of Meissen, Grotesqueries, Mining the Surfaces and Walter Rutkowski Drawings, holiday cards and decorations and artful gifts including divine decorative objects, jewelry, ties, 1998 calendars and much more.

Admission prices are $6 for adults, $5 for seniors 65 and over, and $3 for children ages 3-17. Free admission for Louisiana residents is offered courtesy of Whitney National Bank every Thursday from 10 a.m.-noon. This program may be suspended during special exhibitions.

For information, call the museum at (504) 488-2631; the information hotline FYI (394)-1515, menu 6662; or check NOMA's web site at www.noma.org.

Jingle in the Jungle

The Friends of the Zoo are hosting a new holiday event this season called Jingle in the Jungle.

The holiday festivities are set for Saturday, Dec. 20, 9-11 a.m. in the Jackson Zoo Discovery Area.

The event will feature breakfast with Santa, holiday arts and crafts by Diane Pleasant and special entertainment by Bob Westbrook Vocal Studios. Admission is $5 per person in addition to regular zoo admission. Free admission to the zoo only for Friends members.

For keepsake purposes, guests will be given the opportunity to have their picture made with Santa for an additional $2 and purchase a warm long-sleeved t-shirt or sweatshirt with Jingle in the Jungle artwork by doll maker artist Anne Robin Luckett.

The t-shirts are available in adult ($12) and child ($10) sizes. The sweatshirts (adult only) are $22 each.

Friends memberships will be available for purchase at admissions. To purchase advanced tickets by credit card, call 352-2582.

Travel group rates Jackson exhibition in National Top 100

"The Splendors of Versailles" exhibition, set for Jackson April 1 through Aug. 31, and featuring the largest presentation ever from France's Chateau of Versailles has been selected as the 1998 Top Event in the United States by the American Bus Association (ABA).

Mississippi's First Lady Pat Fordice; E. B. Robinson Jr., chairman of Deposit Guaranty National Bank; Jack Kyle, executive director of the Splendors of Versailles exhibition; and representatives of the French Embassy in Washington were among those attending the press conference.

In 1996, the Places of St. Petersburg event attracted nearly 554,000 visitors to Jackson, the exhibit's only venue.

The Splendors of Versailles exhibit will also be held exclusively in Jackson at the Mississippi Arts Pavilion and consist of approximately 150 objects from the collections of the National Museum of the Chateau of Versailles.

Among the objects are sculpture, paintings, bronzes, clocks, furniture, carpets, tapestries, musical instruments, jewelry, drawings; and porcelain — all associated with the history of France's most famous chateau.

Highlights of the exhibition include the famous "Portrait of Louis XIV" by Hyacinthe Rigaud, a recreation of a royal bedchamber with fabric dating to the end of the 17th century, a gallery of Gobelin tapestries from "The History of the King Series," the "Creation of the World Clock" and Versailles' replica of the dazzling necklace of Marie Antoinette.

Serving as the grand centerpiece of the exhibition will be a specially commissioned replica of the equestrian statue of Louis XIV by Gian Lorenzo Bernini. The replica will weigh 10 tons and rise to a height of 12.5 feet. Two other replicas exist: one at the Chateau of Versailles and another at the Louvre in front of the famous pyramid designed by I. M. Pei.

In addition to objects from the Chateau of Versailles, the exhibition will include objects from the Grand Trianon, the Petit Trianon, and several major U.S. museums whose collections include objects once contained in the Chateau of Versailles.

In 1982, the North American Bus Association launched the Top 100 Events in North America program to assist charter motorcoach and tour operators in planning itineraries. Today, the program attracts worldwide attention, and the Top 100 Events publication is distributed each to tour planners, the general public and the media.

The Top 100 Events include U.S. and Canadian events from each state and province. The events are chosen for their appeal to a wide range of audiences.
